

Reconciliation Statement

Local Land Services commits to walking together with the traditional custodians of this land, Australia's First Nations peoples on the path to reconciliation. In the true spirit of reconciliation, we acknowledge the consequences of past actions, and the impact of these on Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples.

First Nations people have a strong social, spiritual and cultural connection with Country and have made use of complex systems of traditional land management for many thousands of years.

At Local Land Services, we recognise the unique, diverse and enduring cultures of our First Nations peoples have enriched our lives and we will continue to provide our staff with opportunities to learn about these important aspects of Australia's past, present and future.

We also recognise the potential of the lands in our care and genuine collaboration with First Nations peoples to educate non-Indigenous Australians about Aboriginal culture and heritage and traditional land management in the modern context.

Our Reconciliation Action Plan will be a solid foundation for the ongoing work of our staff and our key stakeholders to advance our strategic commitment to "Deliver services that support Aboriginal people to care for Country and share traditional land management knowledge".
