How to have your say on the TSR Review

What is the purpose of this review?

The Travelling Stock Reserve (TSR) Review is seeking input from the community on their use of TSRS. We want to know why you think those TSRS are important and what their values are. Farmers, bushwalkers, campers and fishers, local Aboriginal communities and environmental groups – we want to hear from anyone who has an interest in TSRS in their area.

The Travelling Stock Reserve Review will help determine the current use of the land by collecting an evidence base on what the TSRS are used and valued for today. Importantly, the evidence will be informed by the views of the community. This evidence will help inform future decisions on how to best protect and manage the land for its current and future uses.

How do I have a say about the future of the TSR network?

Step 1: Visit: www.haveyoursay.nsw.gov.au and locate the NSW Travelling Stock Reserve Review tab and visit the consultation website.

Step 2: Download and read though the public consultation paper and the discussion questions on each of the four categories and identify what purpose or values your local TSRS are important for.

Step 3: Check the TSR map for reserves in your area and make a note of the TSR ID number. This online tool provides easy access to quickly identify the TSRS in your local area.

Step 4: Complete either an online submission on the consultation site or email or post your submission.

Submissions on the NSW Travelling Stock Reserves Review can be made:

- Online: www.haveyoursay.nsw.gov.au
- Email: tsr.feedback@lls.nsw.gov.au
- Post: Local Land Services, State Operations PO Box 2105, Dubbo NSW 2830.

Submissions close 5 pm Friday 7 July 2017.

To find out more and read through the public consultation paper visit: www.haveyoursay.nsw.gov.au